

Good evening, everyone. I am Cristhian Edy Llanque Tipo, and I am studying Systems Engineering at the Universidad Peruana Unión. I am currently in my 7th semester, which means I am less than two years away from finishing my degree. Naturally, there are some nerves involved. Why did I choose this career? Because I have always loved technology since I was a child. Additionally, I have had a favorite hobby since I was young: creating or producing my own songs using software. Even today, I continue making music and publishing it on social media, and I plan to keep doing so in the future because it's a talent I don't intend to waste, alongside my career that I have yet to finish. I hope that in a few years, my future will be sustained by both my career and my music, allowing me to travel the world and enjoy the life that God has given me.
